

Donor Report 2015

Sharing results
is the best way to express our gratitude.

Thank You

Dear Friends,

Each year, we try to find new words to express our gratitude to all of you who have contributed to the growth of our University with gifts large and small.

Thanks in great part to your generosity and your belief in a better future, Bocconi has become an attractive destination for top international researchers: men and women who dedicate themselves with discipline and passion to the study of complex problems that businesses, institutions and policy makers must face in a globalized world.

In addition, each year Bocconi welcomes motivated, deserving young people regardless of their economic background. Here, these talented students have the opportunity to realize fully their potential and pursue their ambitious goals and bold dreams. They have you to thank, as do we, for helping to provide that opportunity.

It is thanks to you, once again, that Bocconi is able to offer a more stimulating experience each year, in terms of study, work and life on our urban campus. Cutting-edge facilities and efficient services not only strengthen our teaching and research, but they also nurture social exchange between the many facets of the University community and local society.

In this Donor Report, we wish to share with you the goals we reached in 2015 and the stories of some beneficiaries of your all-important support. We think it is the best way to show how grateful we are. Telling you what we have achieved thanks to your donations is not merely our duty; it also represents a renewed commitment to invest in young people and build a better future, contributing to the equitable and sustainable development of the society in which we live.

Thank you, then, for all you have done and for all you will do. Thank you for sharing this vision with us, a vision we can realize if we continue to face it with a sense of common purpose. Because together, it is within our reach.

Within Our Reach

Together, for a new vision of the future

Bocconi believes and invests in people: students, faculty members and researchers. It does so because it trusts in the value of talent, and in the essential role that education plays in the growth of individuals and in collective progress for the betterment of society.

The University was born of a philanthropic gesture by a man ahead of his time. Ferdinando Bocconi firmly believed that the University would become a leading player in the national economic culture by providing young people with the opportunity to contribute to the country's development. Throughout its history, Bocconi has attracted many other donations, showing that the original vision, which resonated with the most dynamic members of society over a century ago, is still vibrant and real.

Drawing on this farsighted legacy, and inspired by the new Strategic Plan, Bocconi in 2015 re-launched its fundraising activities with the campaign Within Our Reach.

From 2007 to 2015, approximately 76 million euros in donations were raised – toward the ultimate goal of 120 million euros by 2020 – in support of three strategic priorities: Faculty and research; students; the University and the campus.

It is an unprecedented effort, but a necessary one. It is the only means to contribute in a meaningful way to improve the context in which we all live, by seeking equitable, sustainable and practical solutions to the world's problems.

For this reason we invite Alumni, individuals, corporations, foundations and organizations to share the University's values, to honor a pact between generations and to build a new vision of the future, together.

Knowledge and responsibility:
advancing knowledge for a better society

The Invernizzi Foundation and Bocconi together for innovation and social progress

The bond between Bocconi University and the Romeo and Enrica Invernizzi Foundation goes back a long time. Established over twenty years ago and renewed every year through substantial philanthropic donations in support of generations of researchers, it has become even stronger by virtue of the Foundation's decision to fund two important new projects in 2015.

ICRIOS - The Invernizzi Center for Research on Innovation, Organization, Strategy and Entrepreneurship

The permanent naming of a research center is a tangible sign of alliance. Presided over by Franco Malerba and directed by Amaldo Camuffo – Full Professors, respectively, of Industrial Economics and of Business Organization at the Department of Management and Technology – ICRIOS is now the largest European center for research in management, bringing together more than 50 academics, both Alumni and members of other leading national and international research institutions. With the support of the Invernizzi Foundation, the Center can fulfill its role as an engine of ideas with renewed vigor studying methods and experimentation in the governance and management of complex realities, understanding and improving the functioning of companies and institutions and contributing to solving everyday economic and social problems.

LEAP - Laboratory for Effective Anti-poverty Policies

The future of modern societies is born in universities, which are called on to face the big problems of contemporary reality: problems such as poverty, sustainable development, access to resources, and the equitable distribution of wealth. Aware of its responsibility as an institution and in the belief that research plays a key role in fostering economic and social development, in 2011 Bocconi established an endowed Chair in Development Economics. The Chair was created with the support of the Invernizzi Foundation and was awarded to Eliana La Ferrara. In 2015, with yet another significant gift, this shared commitment led to the creation of LEAP – Laboratory for Effective Anti-poverty Policies – guided by La Ferrara herself and Lucia Como as executive director. Through research and rigorous analysis of data, LEAP is committed to studying the origins of poverty, and identifying strategies and instruments that governments, international organizations, non-governmental organizations and companies can use to fight it.

The Laboratory's scientific agenda will put new knowledge in the service of many institutions and contribute to identifying effective public policies to ensure the betterment of society in many countries.

JPMorgan Chase Foundation promoting a more efficient labor market

JPMorgan Chase Foundation and Bocconi University have launched the three-year research program “Employment, Skills and Productivity in Italy”, part of the Foundation’s broader “New Skills at Work” program to provide evidence on how business and academia can work together to produce impact on everyday life. The initiative will analyze the dynamics and changes in the Italian labor market and offer concrete suggestions to bring labor policies closer to reality, companies closer to workers, demand closer to supply – all to increase employment. The project is coordinated by Fabiano Schivardi and Antonella Trigari of IGER, and will provide a set of guidelines to support public and private efforts to confront the difficulties of the labor market, increase levels of skills, and identify opportunities for overall economic growth.

Citi Foundation rewards youth entrepreneurship

Through its partnership with Bocconi University to create Bocconi Start-up Day, Citi Foundation has contributed and will continue to contribute to identifying, developing and rewarding the most promising Italian startups. This in the understanding that new enterprises with a high rate of innovation can represent the cornerstone of development in the advanced economies and a driver for employment growth. The first edition of the initiative – in collaboration with Speed MI Up, SDA Bocconi, the Bocconi Alumni Association, Economia & Management and the media partnership of Corriere Innovazione – has involved more than 250 participants, providing 35 teams with the opportunity to participate in the marketplace and meet potential investors. The winners in the three different categories were awarded a cash prize and the chance to attend SDA executive courses.

LVMH gives value to creativity and excellence

The world's leading luxury goods group LVMH Moët Hennessy Louis Vuitton and Bocconi University have signed a five-year agreement instituting the LVMH Associate Professorship in Fashion and Luxury Management, awarded to Emanuela Prandelli, Associate Professor of Management in the Department of Management and Technology. The inaugural lecture of the professorship opened the first edition of the LVMH Days, held alongside two other events reserved for Bocconi and SDA students: the presentation of the LVMH Challenge (with guest company Loro Piana) and the LVMH Recruiting Date. The partnership will ensure that Bocconi's contribution to studies in luxury management can grow, along with the training and placement opportunities for students, and marks LVMH's commitment and determination to enhance the values of creativity and excellence that constitute the strength of its brands.

A new investment culture with Antin Infrastructure Partners

The EU estimates that by 2020 there will be an infrastructure gap in Europe amounting to two trillion euros. It is imperative, therefore, to disseminate a richer culture of investment in infrastructures. To this end, Antin Infrastructure Partners, one of Europe's leading infrastructure investment funds, has decided to support Bocconi in educating young people on this matter and on the question of structured finance. In funding the course "Structured and Project Finance", taught in the 2015-2016 academic year by Stefano Gatti, Professor of Practice in the Department of Finance and director of the full-time MBA at SDA Bocconi School of Management, Antin has shown its commitment to education as the basis not only for the economic prospects of Bocconi students, but also for their cultural development.

Recognizing the value of merit can turn individual talent into a shared resource and an engine of social mobility. Together, we can educate better citizens and contribute to building a better society. Together, we can attract the most promising students and support bright and motivated young people regardless of their socio-economic and geographic background.

Merit and opportunity:
making talent a shared value

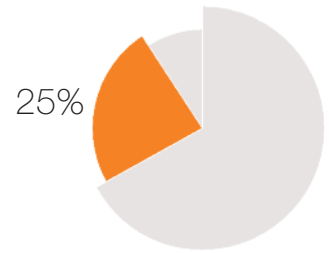

The Alumni Senior Fund: a pact between generations

The sense of belonging to the Bocconi community has always profoundly animated our graduates. For the past three years, on the occasion of the event dedicated to Alumni celebrating the 40th, 50th, 60th and 70th anniversaries of their graduation, Bocconi has promoted the Alumni Senior Scholarship Fund. Thanks to the generosity of participants in the 2013, 2014 and 2015 Reunions, three students have been able to attend Bocconi.

Alumni support has been crucial for each of them, as attested to by their words.

Diego Dessi - 2015 Alumni Senior Scholarship Recipient

"It's an honor to have the support of the Alumni, and it represents a challenge and a motivation not to disappoint those who've believed in you from the start. I want to make the most of the opportunity I've had the privilege of receiving, with the hope of being able to provide future generations of students with the same support from which I've benefited." Diego Dessi, born in 1996, is from Muravera, Sardinia, and is enrolled in the first year of the Business Administration and Management Bachelor program. He is studying hard, and also takes an active part in other areas of University life: student associations and volunteer work.

Giuseppe Leone - 2014 Alumni Senior Scholarship Recipient

"Being a beneficiary of Alumni support is not a finish line but a starting point. I'm truly honored, and receiving it gives me responsibility. I want to seize this opportunity to thank concretely the people who've had faith in me, and I'd like one day to be able to do the same for other students." Giuseppe Leone, from Apulia, was born in 1995 and moved to Milan when quite young to attend Teulié military-scientific high school. He is now in his second year of Business Administration and Management. He excels in his studies and is involved in numerous extracurricular activities.

Marco Graziano - 2013 Alumni Senior Scholarship Recipient

"I wish to thank from my heart all the donors for their support and for the trust they have shown in me by granting me the first Bocconi Alumni Senior Scholarship. It is an important acknowledgement that I hope I can succeed in fully deserving by developing my abilities to the utmost. The chance to succeed at this is the greatest gift that can be offered to an earnest young person." Marco Graziano, a native of La Spezia born in 1994, enrolled in the first year of the Bachelor program in International Economics, Management and Finance and, having completed that year with flying colors, decided to change programs and move to Economics and Social Sciences. In addition to his successful studies, he is active in editorial and student association work.

A commitment that lasts over time

For Federico Tasso, Vice President for International Business Development at the GTECH-Lottomatica Group and an MBA12 Alumnus, working for the Bocconi community is now an integral part of his life. Federico was actively engaged on a volunteer basis as coordinator of the Bocconi Alumni Association (BAA) chapters, but decided he could do still more: in 2015 he chose to renew the support for the University that he had begun in 2013 with three donations to various projects. “In those years of intense work for the the Association, I realized it was necessary to donate something more than just time”, says Federico. “We can all leave a mark, whatever the size. I’m doing – and will keep on doing – all I can to spread the culture of giving and supporting university education. Bocconi’s reputation for transparency and ethics convinces me that my resources will be put to better use than in other initiatives”.

The 2015 Christmas Party

The attendees at the BAA Christmas Party exchanged greetings and decided to put a special gift under the tree: during dinner, funds were raised for a BAA Scholarship to cover a Partial Scholarship for a deserving student in a Master of Science program. Two students, Tudor Carstoiu and Bianca Maria Bettoli, who attended the event as the outgoing and incoming BAA on-campus Vice Presidents, also answered the call. “If it hadn’t been for the scholarship the University gave me I could never have studied at Bocconi”, said Tudor, who came to via Sarfatti from Arad, Romania to earn his Bachelor’s degree in International Economics, Management and Finance. For her part, Bianca explained: “It’s a small contribution, a way of sharing my good fortune to study at this University and make my dreams come true”.

In memory of Matteo Rubino

Matteo Rubino, born in 1987, was a proud and dedicated Bocconi Alumnus who died suddenly in January 2015. To remember him, a group of friends and fellow Alumni decided to launch a fundraising effort to support the undergraduate Partial Scholarship program. Thanks to generous donations, also from relatives and non-Alumni, an important milestone was reached in just a few months. The funds contributed made it possible to name a partial scholarship after Matteo, aiding a Bocconi student for the entire three-year program. The student selected was Alfio Claudio Risuglia, in his first year of Business Administration and Management. For him the contribution is indeed important: "A scholarship is a unique opportunity, a launching pad that enables young people who have encountered obstacles to follow their dreams."

A research scholarship funded by Soremartec Italia

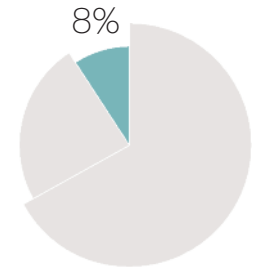

This year Soremartec Italia, the firm that provides the Ferrero Group with information and reports in both technical research and marketing, has for the first time funded a scholarship for a PhD student in Public Policy and Administration: Paolo Belardinelli, a 2014 graduate in Economics and Social Sciences. Paolo's course of study and research project abroad will be supervised jointly by course coordinator Ross Macmillan (pictured on the right), Full Professor of Sociology in the Department of Policy Analysis and Public Management, and by Soremartec's scientific head.

Investing in young people is the key to building a new future. To do this you must unite vision and practicality. You have to create a state-of-the-art environment that best meets the needs of teaching and research and is at the same time a place of lively cultural activity for the University community and the city of Milan. This is a goal we can reach together.

The Partners for Development Program, an alliance between companies and the University

Born twenty years ago, the Partners for Development program is addressed to companies that are particularly sensitive to the social value of research and higher education. The partner firms, through an annual donation and the participation of their management in two committees (Development Committee, and Coordination Committee), become part of a network that actively cooperates with Bocconi on issues of common interest. At the plenary meeting of December 3, 2015 the representatives of Accenture and L'Oréal were presented with a certificate in recognition of their 15 years supporting the Program.

The Partners for Development 2015 are:

- Accenture
- Allianz
- Assolombarda
- Banca Mediolanum
- Bank of America Merrill Lynch
- BNL Gruppo BNP Paribas
- Deloitte
- Deutsche Bank
- Goldman Sachs International - Italian Branch
- Gruppo Generali

Young people ask themselves about the Europe to come at the “Europeans” gatherings

Today it is crucial to question the future of Europe. In order to overcome the crisis of identity and shared values that Europe is experiencing and to build a stronger and more solid Union, contributions around issues related to culture, knowledge, education, communication are needed. With this in mind, in 2015, after the positive experience of the Bocconi-Boroli Lectures, the Achille and Giulia Boroli Foundation and Bocconi University launched “Europeans - Bocconi-Boroli Days on Europe in memory of Achille Boroli”. The project aims to raise young people’s awareness on the European Union, strengthen the academic debate and bring the substance of that debate to the attention of the general public. Consisting of a series of twice-yearly events over a three-year span, the Europeans project presents itself as an occasion for encounters to discuss, compare ideas and analyze issues and proposals for a Europe that will be closer to its citizens and instill a new confidence in the common political and cultural agenda.

Naming a room in the Bocconi 12 Residence Hall

Gianni Zoppas and Alberto Minali attended the University and stayed in the dorm at via Bocconi 12 a few years apart from each other, the former in the late 1970s, the latter in the mid-80s. It was their wonderful memories of those years that led them each to name a room in the dorm, a gesture to honor their university experience and at the same time show the strength of their ties with Bocconi to today's students.

"I really got a lot from living at the Bocconi residence. It was a place of multicultural aggregation ahead of its time, in an era when there was no international openness like today", says Gianni Zoppas, General Manager of Marcolin. "I think it's a duty to give back part of what one has had. I believe very much in the initiatives the University is pursuing in the field of social mobility and think they will be very successful."

A similar story is that of Alberto Minali, General Manager and Group Chief Financial Officer of Assicurazioni Generali, who walked these halls between 1984 and 1989. "I come from a humble family; I was able to study at Bocconi precisely because of the housing waiver I received to live in the dorm", he says, pointing out another aspect that made life within those walls special: "The fact that it's a community able to stimulate exchange and wholesome competition, but with no shortage of mutual aid and team spirit". An experience that shaped him and that "I would like my children to be able to have one day, too."

The Donor Event

The Donor Event of February 1, 2016 was a unique gathering which, for the first time in the University's history, brought together donors who have supported Bocconi since 2007.

Bocconi thanked them and shared its achievements with all the Alumni, individuals, corporations, foundations and organizations that over the years have believed and invested in its development projects. So the University, with the artistic collaboration of the Piccolo Teatro of Milan, developed the event emphasizing some of its core values. During the evening representatives of the University leadership, donors, beneficiaries and the Piccolo Teatro's actors inspired the audience with group conversations on knowledge and responsibility, merit and opportunity, young people and the future. Theatrical representations and first-hand testimonies gave voice to Bocconi University's deep gratitude to its donors and to its conviction that a new idea of the future is made possible by the sharing of beliefs and values.

Our Donors

It is the students, more than any other component of the Bocconi community, who are the primary recipients of all the University's development projects. They benefit from financial aid and scholarships, innovative teaching, the experience of Italian and international professors, the enhancement of research and a life and study experience on a stimulating campus with state-of-the-art facilities.

We firmly believe that students and young people are the future of our society and that only through them is it possible to build a new vision of the future.

This is why we have chosen to thank all the Alumni, individuals, corporations, foundations and organizations that have supported our projects with the words of Bianca Maria Bettoli, an outstanding representative of the University because she embodies so many aspects of the Bocconi community: she is a student, an Alumna, a donor and also the Bocconi Alumni Association on-campus Vice President. These are her words:

"Every donation demonstrates a profound sharing of values and seals the pact between generations that bonds the members of the Bocconi community.

Every gesture, even the smallest, represents, for a young person like me, a tremendous opportunity: that of gaining access to a quality education and acquiring the tools to shape my own future through my own efforts, but also thanks to the support of all of you."

We join with Bianca in thanking you for sharing our vision and for being at our side to help turn these ideas into reality.

We extend our thanks, moreover, to all those donors who prefer to remain anonymous, to those who have indicated Bocconi in their will, and to all those who in 2015 chose to allocate their "5 per 1000" Italian tax designation to the University, thus contributing to the Partial Scholarship program.

Thank you

These lists recognize donations received by the University from 1/1/2015 to 31/12/2015. We apologize for any mistakes or omissions.

Tax advantages

According to Italian law, the University is sustained in part through the contributions of private individuals and corporations and the Italian tax system extends tax benefits to contributors who make donations to it.

Italian Taxpayers

- Individuals:

Contributions and donations made to Bocconi University by individuals can be deducted in full from their gross income (Tax Form 730 or UNICO) according to art. 10 comma 1 letter I-quater of DPR 917/1986 (TUIR).

- Corporations:

Contributions and donations are deductible for an amount not exceeding 2% of the company's declared taxable income according to art.100, comma 2, letter a) of DPR 917/1986 - RM of 17 October 2008, n. 386/E.

Contributions and donations from businesses to universities specifically in support of research are fully deductible from their taxable income according to art. 1, comma 353 of Legge Finanziaria 2006.

Residents of other European Countries

Bocconi's membership in the Transnational Giving Europe network may allow tax benefits for residents of 17 European countries.

UK Taxpayers

Charitable contributions of £250+ to the University from UK taxpayers may be made through the Charities Aid Foundation and may be eligible for UK tax advantages and Gift Aid.

US Taxpayers

Charitable contributions to the University may be made through the US non-profit corporation Friends of Bocconi University, Inc. and may be eligible for US tax advantages.
